METZGER

It's the special locations, it's their soil, it's the many hours of work that go into the vineyard and the cellar.

But above all, it is the people who do this work and thus make wine an extraordinary product of nature.

In 2010 the bull scratched its way into the appearance of the facilities with a big bang, the wine quality finally got the attention it deserved. In addition, there was a separate classification model, which uses the designations of the meat qualities. So the finest wines became fillets, the middle category became pastor's pieces and the base wines to flank. Yes, since then the bull's blood has been flowing in the veins of the Metzgers. There is no giving up here until the best is achieved. And this is becoming more evident every year.

This is how you get top-quality wines from the very best grapes, from the best vines, from the most outstanding locations with the greatest care that sticks in the memory.

Their wines are divided into 3 categories:

A. Fillet : the very best grapes, from the best vines, from the most outstanding locations, developed with the greatest care into top-quality wines of unmistakable origin.

B. Pastor's Piece : the grapes in their middle category come from very good locations and are harvested in high quality with reduced yields. The red wines are matured in barrique barrels.

C. Flank : this is their basic segment and shows a high level right from the start.

THÖRLE

SINGLE VINEYARD WINES, GRAND CRU LEVEL

Their wines from single vineyards are an equivalent to Burgundy's Grand Crus. With their site-specific characteristics, these wines are particularly expressive and have enormous ageing potential. The grapes of these wines grow in their oldest vineyards on their best sites.

Saulheim HÖLLE single vineyard

Hölle is situated on the south-facing slope of a small valley that stretches from Saulheim to the West. The Top soil is loam and clay and the subsoil consists of massive limestone rocks. Today, they own about 5 ha (12.5 acres) in the upper and middle section this vineyard. Hölle has the highest density of limestone in the vineyard sites of Saulheim.

Saulheim SCHLOSSBERG single vineyard

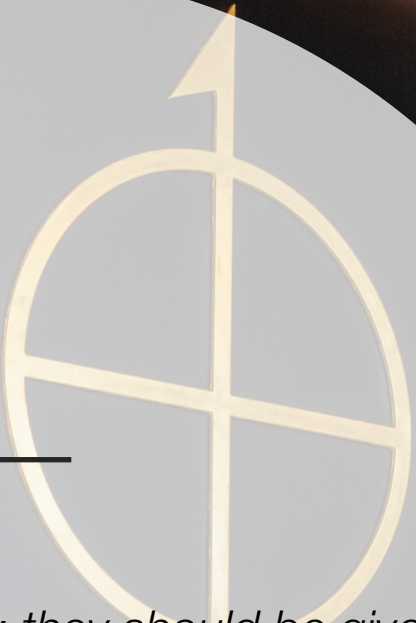

Schlossberg is a west-facing slope in the north of Saulheim that opens like an amphitheater to the Rhine valley. Due to the proximity to the Rhine valley, there is a special micro-climate with constant wind. Heavy clay soils with iron oxides and ferruginous limestone, account for the concentrated mineral flavors of the elegant Schlossberg Rieslings.

Saulheim PROBSTEY single vineyard

The name Probstey origins from the 13th century when famous abbeys, such as "Kloster Eberbach" owned most of the parcels here. It is a wind-open, south-facing slope that stretches from Saulheim to the East. The very warm microclimate and the sandy limestone soils result in rich and full-bodied wines, balanced with precise acidity.

“Vines are like children: they should be given the freedom to develop on their own, but there must be clear rules and boundaries so that they can grow into individual characters.”

BERNHARD KOCH

A winery that focuses on quality. Riesling is still the most important grape variety in their winery in terms of acreage, with about 25% of the vineyard.

The Burgundy grape varieties, however, have increased very strongly in the last 15 years. Therefore, they are now the most represented in total. Starting with Pinot Noir (21%), followed by Pinot Blanc and Pinot Gris (15% each) and Chardonnay (13%), almost 2/3 of our vineyard area is planted with Burgundy varieties.

This development is of course also due to the available soils and the changing climate, but definitely also to personal preference for the resulting wines.

In total, the vineyard area is divided into about 60% white wine and 40% red wine.

—Cristophe Allard,

Kirwan CHÂTEAU

Encountering Kirwan is initially a visual experience. Its vineyard overlooks the Margaux appellation area from the plateau of Cantenac. Its lines stretch off into the distance behind the chateau until all the eye can see is an endless 37-hectare (91-acre) expanse of gravel and clay. A seasoned observer would know that these different soil types contribute to multiple layers of flavour in Kirwan wines.

Château Kirwan is a wine that is produced from the best parcels of the vineyard that have mainly gravel soils, but some are also clay. The fruit is picked and sorted twice by hand, then vinified in separate batches corresponding to individual vineyard parcels. Half the oak barrels used to age the wine for eighteen months are renewed every year.

Les Charmes de Kirwan is the second wine of the property, launched in 1993. It is the main wine's "little brother" and is generally made from the fruit of the youngest vines and parcels of the vineyard that are less gravelly, but sandier. The wine is made highlighting its fruit and maximising suppleness. It can therefore be enjoyed younger.

LUPÉ-CHOLET

In 1903 in Nuits-Saint-Georges, Alexandre de Mayol de Lupé and Félix de Cholet decided to join forces to create the House that still bears their name, the chateau Lupe Cholet located in Burgundy.

"To bring together the best soil, vines and human skill to produce wines of unique personality" was their motto and the same remains to this day even though more than 100 years have passed.

Careful selection of grapes, light pressing, partial or total removal of the stem, cold maceration before fermentation are the techniques used to capture his style in their wines. With this in mind, they create rich and complex wines, overflowing with ripe fruit that is progressively revealed at each stage of their development. As a result, they make excellent Burgundies in every sense of the word.
